In 1988, Nukewatch published the definitive guide to the 1,000 land-based nuclear missiles of the United States as a tool for peace activists.

“One of the most frightening books that I have ever read. ... Every single American should read Nuclear Heartland: Revised and after imbibing the information, they should rise to their full moral and spiritual height to take on the treasonous entities that now imperil our survival.”

- Dr. Helen Caldicott, author and co-founder of Physicians for Social Responsibility

Because 450 land-based missiles are still deployed and on alert, we’ve revised and updated Nuclear Heartland as a renewed call for their abolition.

Nuclear Heartland: Revised Features:

- Updated maps, directions, and photos for the 3 remaining missile fields in Montana, North Dakota, & the High Plains of Wyoming/Colorado/Nebraska;
- A detailed history of the deployment of land-based nuclear missiles in the United States;
- The story of the “drawdown” of the missile fields in rural Missouri, North Dakota, and South Dakota;
- A detailed account of peace actions in the missile fields from 1958 to the present; and
- An examination of the current situation in the missile fields, including recent Air Force scandals and high-level calls for the missiles’ elimination.

POL034000 POLITICAL SCIENCE / Peace

A Nukewatch book
Edited by John M. LaForge and Arianne S. Peterson
With original content by Samuel H. Day, Jr.
Foreword by Matthew Rothschild
Afterword by Bonnie Urfer
Buried under the farms and prairies of the nation’s heartland—near schools, churches, and shopping centers—are 450 intercontinental ballistic missiles armed with nuclear warheads. This section of a map from Nuclear Heartland: Revised Edition shows missile sites and launch control centers in the adjacent corners of Colorado, Wyoming, and Nebraska.

“The heartland of the US should be used to grow needed crops, not harbor weapons of mass destruction. ... As political elites pursue a new cold war and the menace of nuclear weapons continues to build, Nuclear Heartland: Revised Edition reliably extends our horizons for renewed nonviolent resistance.”

— Kathy Kelly, author and Co-coordinator of Voices for Creative Nonviolence

“Holding this book in my hand, I was reminded of the old Pete Seeger song. I sang to myself, ‘Where have all the missiles gone, long time passing?’ Nuclear Heartland: Revised tells us exactly where the missiles are and demands that we find them, dismantle them, and, beyond this, disassemble the mentality that clings to nuclear weapons for security.”

— Frida Berrigan, author and Board Member, War Resisters League
